governed than others. Occasionally there is a spasm of virtue among the population of a mismanaged community, which leads to a regeneration, but as a rule, the change does not last long, the very forces of reform becoming themselves an agency of bad government and retrogression. There is a fixed average standard which fluctuations usually return to.

It is too bad, to be sure, that this is the case. It would be a fine thing for a steady upward movement in municipal government to change the general average to one of great height. If men bent on doing good, concerned in the science of government, masters of economic branches, learned, courageous, honest, with visions of a community happy, prosperous and healthy—if men of such an equipment offered for leadership and the people had the good sense to elect them there would be a revolution in municipal life the country over. Instead of Mayors being men of peculiar breadth, mentality, learning and strength—of that largeness of view needed to handle problems of government—they usually are men who get into office because of certain political expediency, political manipulations, the management of "bosses" and so forth. Many American Mayors are merely peanut politicians without any profound appreciation of their responsibilities or opportunities and ignorant of the elementary matters of government. Surrounded by a lot of local legislators with even less sense of accountability and less knowledge of the complex science which government really is, the administration of municipal affairs under their regime is apt to be distressing to the person of loftier ideals and aspirations.

City government everywhere calls for the most splendid minds, the most superb courage and the highest sense of honor. It calls for learning and humanity, honesty and nerve. The man who becomes a Mayor while thus equipped can make a name for himself. Aside from the glory he can do millions of his brother men a service of inestimable value. Theodore Roosevelt may not wish to mix up in the nagging and pulling of local politics in New York City. He may not consider for a moment the mayoralty. Nevertheless, it is possible for him or any other man to do a greater work in that office than in the presidency.

The Jews and Mesopotamia.
Projects of Jewish colonization have a strange fascination, which arises perhaps as much from the disreputable condition of those to be colonized as from the national aspirations which it is intended to gratify. Schemes which, to an unprejudiced observer, are neither promising nor profitable, do not on a quarter fall of championship in those quarters where a discriminating political gaze goes hand in hand with favor, and where the desire to be helpful is apt to find expression in a well ordered design. Of late years real progress has been made in the direction of planting Jewish colonies of a type that shall be self-supporting; agricultural colonies, for the most part, supplemented by those smaller industries which are pursued beneath one roof.

Although, as we remember, the germ of this movement may be traced to that epoch-making visit to Palestine which made the name of Sir Moses Montefiore at once honored and historic, it may fairly be said that the benefactions of Baron de Hirsch and the wider distribution of his many millions have contributed more especially to the familiarizing of modern minds with a national dream which is to-day nearer realization than at any time since the dispersion. Experiments, somewhat desperate and disconnected, have been made from time to time under conditions as various as those which obtain in New Jersey and in Argentina. Tripoli has been tried and a few feeble essays have been launched in the unpeopled West. But it cannot be claimed that the cosmopolitanism of the Jew has taken kindly to a soil of artificial selection; and the abiding national quality which renders the race incomparable and makes of it the finished masterpiece of a protective insularity, has fretted under restraints purely arbitrary and not infrequently vexatious.

Among themselves the Jews preserve a sympathy and intelligence built up of all the past and present of their mighty story; a bond unique and of intense reality; something warm and vital and veritable; part character, part legend, of prejudice and pride strangely compounded. Their imagination is plastic to the molding of creative destiny; their development the one unchanging thread in all the historical tangle of events. For centuries they have been purveyors of the higher culture and dissemination of the world's knowledge, and the world paid tribute to their genius by contumely and contempt. Their story has a subtle fascination, a dynamic significance, it has all the notes of an "eternal career," yet may one question the probability of its standing in higher relief in another setting. For, whereas in the past persecution spelt poetry and repression made for virility, it is not certain that an intimacy with ease in a machine-made homeland would move with breath a national life which isolation has embalmied.

Prophecy like Zangwill paint their illusions with gusto; Zion to them has a very real existence and nothing is quite so cheery in its promise of heaven and happiness as those "enthusiasms" which they voice so vibrantly. They have the eyes to see and to feature the return of the people of Israel to that land "adorned with the sky" which was once their own; but, one asks it reverently, is there either a demand for such a migration or a proximate likelihood of its success?

According to the Jewish Daily News the "Iron" Society, that amazing colonization body to which Baron de Hirsch left a trust fund of $45,000,000, has perfected plans to relieve the Jews of Russia and Roumania by transporting them to Mesopotamia, where the Turkish Government pledges itself to grant them home rule. The Alliance Israélite Universelle, the Zionist organization, and the Jewish Territorial Association are all co-operating in a scheme of which Mr. Jacob H. Schiff is the moving spirit. Undertaken, and this Alliance Israélite, this Zionist organization, and the Jewish Territorial Association are all co-operating in a scheme of which Mr. Jacob H. Schiff is the moving spirit. Undertaken, and this Alliance Israélite, this Zionist organization, and the Jewish Territorial Association are all co-operating in a scheme of which Mr. Jacob H. Schiff is the moving spirit.

Those who would picture the Jew as a wanderer, as lacking the patriotic devotion to a home-land, as living in a future of fulfillment, are singularly wide of the mark, and would, we fear, be desperately disillusioned in America. They are Americans, none better; in England more British than the Briton; they have given of their life blood for France, the first country to grant them a perfect citizenship. That, in a national sense, they are a race apart, is largely a figurative legend of modern application most obviously limited; that they are alien and foreign to their surroundings is but a temporary condition lost in the second generation; and the splendid story of their struggle and their victory is largely the story of the conquest of their environment. As they exist to-day they perform a rare service of very real value; they take hold of the imagination and throw a light upon the past. In a wonderful way they visualize the dynamics of life and intellectualize the survival of the fittest.

In Mesopotamia they could do no more.

A Royal Boy's Gratitude.
Young King Manuel of Portugal has done a gracious act in bestowing upon his mother, Queen Amelia, widow of King Carlos, three decorations never before conferred upon a woman, in recognition of her heroism when her husband and son were assassinated in February of last year. It strikes the republican as a strange spectacle—this one of a son patronizing his mother. It is one of the usages of royalty, however, and so it must be accepted as conventional and proper. It is the humanity of the act that must be to the American view its most impressive merit. It betokens a sense of gratitude, an attitude of adoration and a graceful state of mind in every way and so it meets with general and generous applause.

The accounts of the assassination cabled at the time testified to the bravery of the royal wife and mother. The decree proclaiming the honors just bestowed amplifies the testimony. It recites that after King Carlos and Crown Prince Louis had been shot dead the Queen with noble courage and maternal instinct flung herself in front of her son Manuel and endeavored to thrust aside the weapon of Costa aimed at him. Her escape was remarkable, for the bullet struck her corsege and by a mere lucky chance was deflected. Undoubtedly by her act, which seemed to make her death sure, Manuel's life was saved, and as a result of that bravery, Manuel lives to-day to reign.

F. G. EWING REPLIES TO LETTER PUBLISHED BY JOEL B. FORT
General Manager Presents His Side of the Controversy Now Going On in The Planters' Protective Association.

[To the Editor of the Courier-Journal.]
Relative to the article of Mr. Joel B. Fort which has appeared generally in the newspapers of the Black Patch, and which has especial reference to me, I am averse to controversies of any nature, and, in fact, am so completely absorbed in matters of great importance connected with the association work that I have not had the time to reply to opinions expressed by others, so am I simply confined myself to correction of misstatements of facts concerning me personally. Within a short time the columns of the Tobacco Planter will be devoted to expressions of opinions of men sincerely interested in the upbuilding of the association, which I trust will result in bringing closer together the views of all men interested. There was a suggestion made by a very warm friend of the association, which I trust has much sense in it, and that is that Mr. Fort and myself had much to be fighting the enemy than fighting each other, and I shall certainly accept the suggestion as such. I am a member of the association, and I trust I shall be able to do so in the future. As to those statements referring to me in regard to compensation for the association, Mr. Fort says "I have never received a position or a cent of money from the association." This is a statement which I cannot say is true. Mr. Fort says that while I was in a hospital in New York City, I was given a position, and later I asked for an increase of salary, which I was given. I was given a position, and later I asked for an increase of salary, which I was given. I was given a position, and later I asked for an increase of salary, which I was given.

How Money was Received.
Mr. C. H. Fort wrote my wife, saying that the board of directors had decided to pay me $100 a month. I was in a hospital in New York City, and I was given a position, and later I asked for an increase of salary, which I was given. I was given a position, and later I asked for an increase of salary, which I was given. I was given a position, and later I asked for an increase of salary, which I was given.

Question of Salaries.
When I returned home there was a goodly sum of money in the treasury and I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors.

Act of the Board.
Mr. Fort does not seem to consider that the board of directors acted upon the matter of my salary. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors.

Voted $833 a Month.
When I returned home there was a goodly sum of money in the treasury and I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors.

A Mistake.
The most serious mistake ever made by the association, the pricing of low-grade tobacco too high and the necessity of grading down the tobacco to a lower grade to enable us to sell it, was made. This mistake caused the association many thousands of dollars of loss and caused great dissatisfaction to those who were members of the association. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors. I was in a position to pay the salaries of the directors.

On the Funnybone.
The Annual Poem.
The time is ripe, so I suppose,
To say my annual say.
You know just how the bromide goes:
"It is not always May."

Helping Some.
"Yes, I have a garden."
"I presume you raise enough to keep all your neighbors in early vegetables?"
"Well, no. But I do manage to keep their chickens pretty well supplied."

Hard To Dodge.
Too much of fame in any shape
To a woman
A famous poet can't escape
His creditors.
A Good Way.
"What are you astir about now?"
"Mother's day. What shall we do to honor Mother's day?"
"Well, you could pass one day without doing anything to worry her?"

Reason Enough.
"Going to umpire the picnic ball game?"
"Nope."
"And why not?"
"I umpired a ball game once."

STORIES OF THE TOWN.
A young society man, who is regarded as being a regular Beau Brummel of a fellow, has been pondering over a remark made to a girl not long ago, and her reply to it. It is the latter which has caused him much thought. He likes to consider himself a man of the world, but he doesn't like to have other people in as upon that definition.

Points About People.
Mrs. Wilson Cochran has issued invitations to a 5-o'clock tea, to be given next Thursday at the home of Mrs. George Staunton Tiffany.
Miss Elizabeth Rauscher, of Shelbyville, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frazier Bonnie for several days, has returned home.
Mrs. Jennie C. Morton has returned to her home in Frankfort after a week's visit here, the guest of Mrs. Judith L. Marshall.

The main topic of conversation after the sixth race was Bryce running second at the Santa Anita meet. "I bet you didn't know that," said the owner of the horse. "There were only three tickets sold at the straight machines on this one and had he won his backers would have received $100,000 each." "That's a pretty big haul," said the writer. "If breeding costs for anything this horse is a good one." "That's all right," said the owner. "I'll bet you'll find the purchase of the turf 'he is bred in the purple,' his sire, The Hard, being the same." "That's true," said the writer. "Los Angeles, was that noted mare of 'Lucky'?" "That's right," said the owner. "The horse, including Los Angeles, the great four miler."

To the best recollection of those who follow the doings of the horses closely this is the first meeting that has been held in the city since the war. It has been represented and not a winner returned. If he starts to win, he will be a winner. He is a "hunch" for those who believe in hunches.

most famous professional in the country engaged in competition with the best amateurs that Kentucky can produce. The trap men on Thursday spoiled the sport to a certain extent on the opening day but yesterday the trap shooters made up for lost time. The Brewers' Exchange was shot in the forenoon, and this evening the Walnut Log and Walnut Log. This handicap was finished shortly after noon, and then the championship match was begun.

Sheets, of the Lexington club, and asked the game manager to allow the Lexington team to play the game on the Lexington grounds for this afternoon. Sheets refused to do this, however, on account of lack of time to allow the game. Though his grounds are in good shape. The date for the postponed game was set for 1:30 p.m. played here on June 24. Frankfort goes to Lexington to-morrow for a game.

To-day.

A detailed black and white illustration of a horse and jockey in mid-stride during a race. The horse is galloping to the right, with its front legs extended forward and its tail slightly raised. The jockey is wearing a helmet and a racing silks, leaning forward in a classic racing posture. The background is plain, focusing all attention on the horse and rider.
